

PRIVACY POLICY

HT Mobile Apps, LLC (the “Company”) takes the privacy of personal information about the users of the Company’s products very seriously. The language below appears in the End User License Agreement (“EULA”) for the product that the User, as defined in the EULA that User is using:

“Licensor will not use any personal identification information or financial information about User in any of Licensor's business activities, other than in connection with the use of the App by the User. Licensor will disclose to the financial institution that gives User access to the App (the “Financial Institution”) the user’s name, email address, device type and usage history. The Financial Institution may use that information to promote its business offerings to the User. By accepting the terms of this Agreement (including use of the App, regardless of any formal acceptance of this Agreement by User), User consents to the disclosure of that information to the Financial Institution.”

In all events, the Company will comply with all laws and regulations regarding the privacy of personal identification information and financial information of all Users of any Company product.

The App’s account sync features utilizes Plaid. View Plaid’s end user privacy policy.

Effective date: September 1, 2018